

Alumnos:Marcos Chouza Cruces*Álvaro Camino Martínez*1. Where would they sleep?

It was very difficult to find a place to sleep without being seen by security cameras, so I had to squeeze into a small space behind a vending machine. Little by little, like in a prison movie, I carved out a hole in the wall where I made myself a bed, a bathroom, and even had a cat.

2. Where would they buy food?

Oh, this one's an easy answer. I either stole from the airport food stands or picked the pockets of elderly people passing by. I'm not proud of it, but hey, I was hungry and needed to eat

3. How would they pass their time?

It's really funny to remember. I used to get into the control tower and give fake landing instructions to different planes. Then I had to run off to watch how they scrambled to fix the mess. I loved watching all stressed out over the mistake.

4. How could they keep in touch with their friends and family?

Taking advantage of my engineering skills, I slowly built a radio and signal antennas using old materials from the airport. I made my own phone and could call them whenever I wanted. So, staying in touch was never really a problem.

I even remember one time when my girlfriend's parents came to visit me in my little airport home... It was quite a lovely evening.
